The July Alumni Magazine is different! It is different because we hear very often that the alumni would like to know more about campus life as it is today. The bulletin within these pages was prepared this spring and we think it gives a fairly accurate picture of the Hope student life as it is today.

It is a promotional publication which the administration is sending to prospective students. Perhaps you will get "a kick out of" showing it to young people you have considered the Hope type. Perhaps you will like to keep it on your magazine shelf to show to those who would like to know more about Hope and the type of student it serves. We in the Alumni Office are very proud of the type of young person that enrolls at Hope College, and we like this booklet. We hope you will to.

an album

So you're making preparations to go to college . . .

Well, let me introduce you to my school, Hope College, of Holland, Michigan. Hope is a friendly place. It's not long after you arrive that you know that warm feeling of welcome. And you carry that "I belong" feeling for life, I can assure you.

It's partly the size, small enough that everybody knows everybody else.

You come to know your teachers as people, and they are interested in you. There is a close fellowship. You come to see the other fellow's viewpoint, whether he is from Tallahassee or Timbuktu. And he learns yours.

But there's much more to it than size. You feel a stimulation, not alone of people but of a Christian atmosphere acknowledging the power of God to run our lives, that will raise your standards and your chances of meeting these standards. One nation-wide study of American schools and universities comments upon Hope's "high sense of moral dedication and the very great conscientiousness of its teaching staff."

Hope's name is known. In athletics it means spirited competitors, frequent championships, clean sports. In scholarship, wherever you go—in whatever field you find a Hope College alumnus, you see a person holding his own with the best, and more.

And when you leave Hope, believe me, you'll hate to leave. But you'll be well prepared. Equipped for your work and fortified with friends that fan out all over the world. And I shall be one of them.

. . . from a Hope College Alumnus

you'll be welcome at Hope

YES, soon after you arrive, you'll feel you're really a part of Hope. And you'll probably want to begin your own album, your record of the campus, the buildings, the friends who bring Hope College alive to you as long as you live. I hope my album will convey some of this to you.

and guidance

AMONG the advantages of retaining enrollment at around 1,000 students is the opportunity to maintain a really personal relationship among students, faculty, administration. No one need feel "left-out" at Hope. From the first many hands are stretched out in friendship, help and guidance. Each student has a personal counselor to whom he can turn. Early help makes orientation to college life easier, with confidence and self assurance the result.

- Congenial class relationships.
- The dunes of Lake Michigan are a favorite setting for artists.
- Homecoming festivities—Hope and Holland participate with great gusto.
- Dutch Treat Week—a popular Hope tradition.
- Outstanding musical direction.
- Drawing nations closer together.
- Chatting with "the Prof" in the Koffee Kletz.
- Charting the future helps to direct today's efforts.

THE HOPE atmosphere is charged with an awareness of the presence, the power, the permanence of the spiritual. It activates a mingling of tradition and progress. It sustains an unhurried but dedicated quest for self-fulfillment and creative relations with others. It embodies a deep concern for the individual.

OPE COLLEGE is set in the center of the city of Holland, Michigan, world famous for its annual Tulip Time and International winter ski meets. Holland offers much to the college student in the way of variation. Many participate in the festival and delight in its activities. Boating and fishing are fine on Lake Macatawa and horseback riding on forest trails nearby. The sandy shores of beautiful Lake Michigan are a perfect place for swimming, sun bathing and "wiener roasts."

EARNING is a wonderful, unfolding thing. While the mastery of the main body of subject matter occurs in the classrooms, the lab, and in the seclusion of your own study den, often it all comes to life in the spirited interchange of small groups, the first-hand observation of field trips, contact with leading thinkers.
